L I F E S T Y L E | M A G A Z I N E

From soulful songwriting to high-energy Zydeco, these Texas artists are making waves across the Lone Star State and beyond.

Whether they're playing local stages or bringing their sound to national audiences, each musician brings something unique to the Texas music scene. Here's what's new with Greg Whitfield, Donovan Moses, and Step Rideau.

Greg Whitfield

Former kindergarten teacher and longtime singer-songwriter Greg Whitfield continues to leave his mark on the Lone Star State's music scene. Coming off the momentum of his 2024 release Footprints, Whitfield has been busy hitting the road with radio interviews and live shows to promote the record. Footprints was recorded at the renowned Blue Rock Studio in Wimberley and features an all-star rhythm section including Glen Fukunaga, Rick Richards, Mark Dotson, Chris Gage, and Gene Elders. With his signature blend of soul-stirring lyrics and richly layered instrumentals, Whitfield is currently rehearsing new material for his sixth studio album, which is set to begin recording later this year. You can explore all things Greg Whitfield on his website.
